BUILDING STATE ROADS.

One of the big problems of the state government today is the construction of roads. Following a demand for better highways, the legislature at its last session appropriated lavishly to meet the requirements of a bountous flow of "good roads" money from the federal government. Then a campaign of construction was started which rapidly grew to great proportions and seemingly got beyond the control of the state board. Expenditures were made in every direction, until finally it was discovered that the outlay was exceeding the available funds, and on top of this state bonds suddenly dropped from a slight premium to 87 cents on the dollar, so that when the road commission sought to realize on the bonds there came the knowledge of the fact that more work was under way and planned than there were funds.

Boards of commissioners throughout the state, dealing with the state authorities, met with constant shift of policy and projects were cancelled after all arrangements had been made to go forward. As a result of this confusion, and seeming vacillation, considerable irritation has been created, in fact so much so that at a meeting of the Good Roads convention for central and southern Utah on Tuesday the following resolutions were adopted:

That we do not believe we are receiving our just proportion of state and federal road funds.

"That we believe from the reports made by the secretary of state, that there is a needless and wasteful expenditure of the state road funds, especially in the way of overhead expense, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded immediately by the officers of this convention to each member of the state road commission.

"We got the same thing that we have received heretofore when we have been before the state road commission, promises in plenty, said M. M. Steele, county road agent of Millard county, following the conference with the state road commission yesterday

John S. Turner, county commissioner of Morgan county, was also before the commission regarding the construction of the road between Devil's Slide and Morgan. Mr. Turner told the commission that Morgan county had waited for almost four years for improvements on the highways in the county and they wanted to know why no action had been taken. The road between Devil's Slide and Morgan, it was said, was in bad shape and it was absolutely necessary that some work be done. Dan B. Shields, attorney general, was in favor of action and it was decided that a survey be made and work be started as soon as possible.

Among the state projects, work on which should start within a few days, is the Ogden canyon highway, also the paving of North Washington avenue, in Ogden, from the Ogden river bridge to the north limits of the city. These two pieces of road construction have been under consideration over a period of years and state aid had been promised and repeatedly deferred until a short tim ago, when the total property of Ogden and Washington as a possible.

WITHIN ONE MAN'S LIFE.

Over two thousand old folks, 70 years and over, gathered at Lorin Farr park yesterday, as the guests of the church people. While the entertainment was provided by the different wards, every old person in Ogden and in the county outside the city was invited without regard to religious belief.

These yearly events are considered by many to be the most gracious of all indness bestowed on old folks in any part of the United States, and this custom is now spreading to other states.

One of the speakers on the program held in the hall, remarked that a number present were over 90 years, which would place their birth as early as 1830, when the settlement of the United States did not extend west of the Missouri and Mississippi rivers, and that the old people had seen the most wonderful period of development in the history of the world.

Washington died only 30 years before the oldest person on the tary duty. grounds was born, and Napoleon had been dead not more than nine vears

Those 90 years of age were 16 years old when the Mexican war broke out and 18 years old when this part of America was ceded to the United States by Mexico. They were 17 years old when the pioneers arrived in Utah. Here are a few of the big things which have occurred within the lives of those who were the honored guests yesterday In 1845 the first telegraph line for commercial purposes was built from Philadelphia to Morristown.

In 1847 the first railroad in Canada was constructed.

And within six years the most terrible of all world wars has shaken the foundations of civilization. Only four years prior to the birth of the oldest person among the two thousand yesterday, the first railroad was constructed and was only 26 miles long. One of the first locomotives built was designed by John Eriesson, the constructor of the famous Monitor. Our old folks, it is evident, have lived to see the greatest transformations since the day when men emerged the cave to work his wonders in the control of nature.

MAY NOT BE WET.

Facing an issue as perplexing as was the league of nations for the Republicans, the Democrats in San Francisco are maneuvering for a straddle of the liquor question. On Tuesday the subcommittee of the committee on resolutions rejected a proposal to put a wet plank into the Democratic platform, by a vote of 6 to 8. Rather a narrow margin on an issue so important.

Why not give the present laws on liquor time in which to be tested? Why not consider the subject as disposed of for the next four years? The country was very "wet" for over a century. Why not allow the "drys" a fraction of that time in which to test their they have "wonderful curea." faith in prohibition? The Palmer men are grimly saying that if the attorney general does not get the nomination. McAdoo will not be allowed to do so. The Coxites are asserting that if the Ohio governor should fail to receive it, McAdoo will go down in the crash with him. But the feeling of the Cox people toward the Palmer camp is exceedingly bitter, and in spite of the efforts of the latter to heal the breach, it does not seem as though any formal combination of the mining development of the tree in thinned even if there is fruit on only the first on only one branch of the tree.
